The Myth of “Mutual Battering” Resources

The following resources raise important questions and concerns regarding the myth of mutual battering, and provide useful information about the context of victims' use of violence.

Some of these resources are available on the CCWS website—www.endingviolence.org: Scroll down to the bottom of the home page and choose Community Coordination for Women's Safety, then choose Documents—Coordination Resources or Documents—Coordination Resources on Other Websites.

We will be adding more resources regularly. If you have any questions, or suggestions of other articles or links, please contact us at the phone numbers/emails below.

Books

Dangerous Domains by Holly Johnson (Nelson Canada, 1996) has an excellent introduction which deals with statistical research.

Coordinating Community Responses to Domestic Violence: Lessons From Duluth and Beyond by Melanie Shepard and Ellen Pence (Corwin, 1999) has an excellent analysis of what constitutes "battering" and how this might be different than criminal law definitions of assault etc. Chapter 10 is most pertinent.

RCMP Policy and Training Documents

RCMP E Division Operational Manual Part 2- Criminal Code Offenses- Persons, Violence in Relationships Section 4 Primary Aggressor, Amended 2005-02-24

VAWIR E Division Training Bulletin which deals specifically with defenses of mutual battering. The Bulletin number is ON-308. Issued: 97-09-23.

Education Project

Safe Choices Support and Education Program

Safe Choices - Support and Education Program is a Vancouver-based program about same-sex relationship abuse between women. It focuses on improving the health and safety of women who are currently or have been in abusive queer relationships. Safe Choices strives to empower women and strengthen our communities to respond to this issue. The Program is funded by the Vancouver Coastal Health Authority, and is managed by the BC Association of Specialized Victim Assistance and Counselling Programs.

Safe Choices provides free training and resources for social service and health care providers to improve their knowledge and skills in the area of same-sex relationship abuse.
